Community Band Committee Meets

At the last meeting of the Wilmington Community Band Committee, plans were made to hold the second annual concert in January. We think that at this concert the people of Wilmington are in for a pleasent surprise. With the closing of the outdoor season the younsters diligently got down to the serious business of rehearsals, and have shown a tremendous improvement.

With the thought of ever enlarging the band the committee has made a few plans and formed novel ideas so that in the very near future new instruments will be purchased.

Anyone interested in having their children join the band should attend one of the rehearsals on Sunday at 12:30 o'clock in the Town Hall, and speak to Mr. Charles Cavanaugh, the Committee chairman.

..... Legion Notes .....

On last Sunday, Comdr. Call and Walter Goss who acted as his adjutant, in due of the fact Adjutant J. Turner Hood was unable to attend, attended the district meeting at Reading, with Dis Comdr. Skane presiding.

At this meeting dates for district meetings were made as follows; Dec 10 at Reading; Jan 15, at Wakefield; Feb. 12 Wilmington; Mar. 18 Stoneham; April 23, No. Reading; and May 22 at Melrose. Comdr. Call hopes all members of the local post will attend the Reading meeting in a bory.

Plans wre made during the meeting for the forming of emergency groups in each post to be ready at all times to offer services during disasters and emergency. Plans were also madefor the Armistice Day parade to be held

ATTENTION

Having read the letters in you paper signed by the "Liquor Control Board" I wonder if the Public in the Town of Wilmington know or are acquainted with the Author of the articles, as he has never, to my knowledge signed his name to any of them.

What is he afraid of? Is it on account of the fact that those who know him also know that he is not very consistent in regards to liquor.

We fully realize that there are a few places in the Town that are not an asset to the Liquor Business, but why should we all be condemned by the actions of a few. The majority of places in this Town are conducted and operated according to law and should be allowed to continue in business, as long as they conduct their business in a proper manner.

The revenue derived from the Liquor Dealers is quite an item. License Fees, Taxs and Wages not only to the Town but to the State and Federal Government, and is something the Town can not afford to lose. Also the employment question which is so vital today, there are a number of persons whose only means of livlihood depend on these places of business.

Another group are working and hoping to see the Town go dry so that they can go in the bootlegging racket and then there is no control whatever and will be an additional expense to the Town enforcing the law so instead of receiving revenue from the Liquor Dealers, the Town will have addition al expenses.

Before you make up your mind, think it over and check up on the "Liquor Control Board".

Please vote yes on all three Liquor questions.

Communication

Mr. Frank O'Hara, Editor,
Wilmington Mirror,

The citizens of Wilmington are well aware and are deeply impressed with the gravity of the liquor situation, without the misleading propaganda from the gentleman news writer who resides in Woburn. We do not intend to indulge in the smear campaign started by the spokesman of the liquor dealers.

We have talked with liquor dealers and they themselves have expressed dissatisfaction with the constant increase of Liquor Lienses that are about to be applied for. It is not a question of who is wet and who is dry or who is a Democrat or who is a Republican. The question is, how much longer are the people going to tolerate the uncontrolled Liquor situation in our Town? The people of Wilmington will solve their own destinies without the advice of those who have been waxing fat on the unfortunates of our Town.

You read about people being put out of work if the Town goes dry, but don't you believe it. Better business establishments will seek sites in our Town. Taxes will be paid whether the people vote " For" or "Against" that is a law for very property owner. In all our travels about Town, we have failed, to find one taxpayer, who has ever received a reduction in his tax bill, accrued from license fees, we as we were led to believe in 1933. More and more challenging are those who seek to deceive us. Stand firm on November 5th and vote "No" on questions one, two and three.

Barrows Defends Finance Comm.

October 24, 1940

Editor of the Wilmington Mirror,
Wilmington Mass.

In reply to the article in your last weeks issue headed "O'Leary asks a few Questions" I think that a plain statement of the true situation regarding appropriations for Welfare, Old Age Assistance, and Aid to Dependent Children will be in order.

On September 27 last, this Board met in conference with the Welfare Board regarding these appropriations and were told that one of the main reasons for their lack of funds was the failure to receive amounts due Old Age Assistancec and A. D. C. from the Federal Government when it should.

At this meeting the Finance Committee voted to recommend the amounts asked for by the Welfare Board which were to be acted upon at a Town Meeting called for September 30th, namely $5000. for Welfare $6000. for Old Age Assistance and $1250. for Aid to Dependent Children, which meeting was adjourned for one week on account of lack of quorum.

On September 30th I received a copy of a letter sent to the chairman of the Welfare Board which explains why payments due the Town have not been received and which shows that the holding up of these paymnts to the Town recipients is due to the negligence of the members of this Welfare Department and no one else.

September 28, 1940
Jeremiah O'Leary, Chairman
Board of Public Welfare
Wilmington, Massachusetts
Dear Mr. O'Leary:

The situation concerning the submission of your required monthly reports on Old Age Assistance and Aid to Dependent Children has become intolerable and unless conditions change for the better we will have to resort to such remedies as are available to us under the Social Security Act.

We have not as yet received your July and August reports on Aid to Dependent Children, and I understand that the August report on Old Age Assistance had to be made out by Mr. Lahey of our office. Although he did not say so, being too considerate. I feel that you are displaying absolutely no cooperation toward this office or Mr. Lahey, who represents it in the field.

Please be advised that no reimbursement will be sent to your town on Old Age Assistance for the month of September unless your report is made out by your office and is submitted to us by the 10th of the month as required. You may have the fullest cooperation of Mr. Lahey in assisting you, but I have instructed him that he is not to make out the report or any future report for you. That is your duty and obligation and not ours. In short, unless the reports and other documents required under the Social Security Act are submitted to this office in accordance with the rules and regulations, reimbursement will be withheld until such time as you do conform to the requirements.

Very truly yours,
John J. Donnelly
Supervisor of Welfare Statistics

When the facts in this letter were considered by the Finance Committee they voted to reconsider their action at the previous meeting and to recommend that "No money be borrowed appropriated under this Article until the Committee had looked into the situation further.

This Board have taken care of the two payments on Aid to Dependent Children by transfers from the Reserve Fund, the Old Age Assistance Ac-

Household News By Eleanor Howe

Halloween provides a good excuse for an unusual party. The theme you may select should be the basis around which the party is built. "Black Magic Party," "The Haunted House," Buried Treasure Hunt," "The Witches' Rendezvous," "The Ghosts Gambol" are all suggestive names for the party you may be planning for All Hallows' eve.

A Halloween party without decorations just isn't a party. They may be as simple that it takes very little time to put them up; pumpkins, cornstalks, and lighted jack-o'-lanterns. Or you may decorate with witches, owls, black and orange crepe paper streamers, black and gray crepe paper moss dripping from the ceilings, or ghosts standing in spooky corners with eerie lights thrown upon them.

In keeping with Halloween we must not forget the traditional games and pranks. The chamber of horrors, with clanking chains, damp hands clutching the guests, and dark tunnels should put the guests into the spirit of the party. Bobbing for apples, fortune telling and guessing games are all old favorites. These suggestions may bring to your mind others that may be old-time Halloween games.

Orange Sauce.

1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon cold water
5 tablespoons sugar
5 tablespoons hot water
5 tablespoons orange juice
½ teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon butter

Make a paste of the cornstarch and cold water. Add sugar and hot water and cook for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add fruit juices and butter.

Halloween Ice Cream Clowns.

Place a ball of ice cream on a butter cookie and use raisins, tiny gumdrops or candied cherries to make the eyes, nose, and mouth in the ice cream. Place an ice cream cone upside down on the ice cream for a cap, and place a ruff of whipped cream on the cookie around the clown's neck.

Pumpkin Ice Cream.
(Makes 1 quart)

¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
Pinch of salt
1 cup coffee cream
2 egg yolks (beaten)
¾ cup pumpkin (canned)
½ teaspoon orange rind (grated)
½ cup pecan meats
½ cup whipping cream

Combine the sugar, cinnamon, ginger and salt. Mix well. Add the cream slowly and scald over boiling water. Mix beaten egg yolks and pumpkin, and add to the cream mixture with the orange rind. Return to heat, and cook for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Chill, fold in the nutmeats and whipped cream, and pour into the freezing container of an ice cream freezer, filling it not more than ⅔ full. Assemble and cover the freezer. Surround with a mixture of 3 parts of crushed ice to 1 part rock salt. Next turn the crank slowly and steadily until turning becomes difficult. When the mixture is frozen, carefully remove the dasher and pack down the cream with a spoon. Replace the cover, draw off the water, and replenish the ice and salt. Let stand for an hour.

Goblin's Dessert.
(Serves 4 to 5)

2 eggs (separated)
7 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon butter (melted)
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup orange juice
1½ cups stale bread (cut in pieces)

Beat egg yolks until very light, and gradually beat in the sugar. Add butter, salt and orange juice. Pour over the cubed bread. Beat egg whites until stiff, and fold into the first mixture. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Ginger Snap Pie Crust.
(Makes 2 crusts)

Make 3 cups ginger snap crumbs by rolling ginger snaps on bread board or crumbling through food chopper. Combine with ½ cup melted butter and blend lightly. Then press mixture into pie plate, shaping firmly all around, and place in refrigerator to chill until firm.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie.
(Makes 2 pies)

3 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup cold water
6 eggs
2 cups sugar
2½ cups strained pumpkin
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup whipping cream

Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Separate eggs and beat egg yolks. Then combine 1 cup of the sugar, the strained pumpkin, milk, salt, and spices with the egg yolks and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from fire, add gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, stir in the remaining cup of sugar and fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour filling in the chilled ginger snap pastry shells and chill in refrigerator until set. Before serving decorate pies with whipped cream faces, using chilled pastry tube.

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE newest frilled curtains give a full, lavish effect. If they make your old curtains look a bit dejected, like those shown here at the right, don't be discouraged. The window at the left uses those same curtains with a dash of glamour added. This economy trick saved a certain young matron enough money to buy a number of smart new accessories for her living room.

She discovered that a diagonal dart, which took up the curtains at the back, threw more fullness to the front, thus giving the new high drape a smart line. Tiebacks and valance were made of flowered chintz in rose and plum tones, lined with plain plum colored chintz. One yard of each kind of chintz was required for each window.

NOTE The chintz covered lamp shade and the spool table also add interest to this window. Full directions for making a shade like the one illustrated are in SEWING Book I. Directions for the spool table are in Book 5. also descriptions of the first four booklets in this series. STAGE—SCREEN—RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ACTORS usually dread working with children on the stage or in pictures because children, like animals, invariably "steal" scenes. One cut gesture, one little smile from a child can make an Academy Award winner look like a piece of furniture, so far as audiences are concerned.

Nevertheless the members of the cast of "Shepherd of the Hills" were delighted to have four-year-old Virita Campbell in their midst while they were on location in the San Bernardino mountains. On location hours are usually very long, the rule being to shoot from daybreak to sunset to take full advantage of the natural light. Which means that actors, stars and all, get up at 5:30 or thereabouts.

But in the eyes of the state labor law Virita is an infant, so she can't start to work until 8 a. m. Consequently the actors who worked with her got two extra hours of sleep every morning. They brought pressure to bear on Director Henry Hathaway to extend her part so that it would last for the entire six weeks.

Deanna Durbin's new picture, "Spring Parade," is a honey, chiefly because she, S. Z. Sakall and Henry Stephenson are in it. The story is just another of those Old Vienna things, but Henry Koster did a good job of directing, the entire cast—it includes Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Denny, Robert Cummings and Franklin Pangborn—is good, and there are some lovely new songs. The grown-up Deanna is charming and sings beautifully, of course—and as the setting is what old Vienna always is in the movies, she sings an arrangement of the "Blue Danube."

DEANNA DURBIN

Practically all the men stars in Hollywood were fired from perfectly good jobs before they turned to the movies. Preston Foster suspects that Nelson Eddy got the one he lost. Foster was working on a Philadelphia newspaper, selling classified advertising. He got extra jobs singing in the chorus and in minor roles in the La Scala Opera company. One day the boss dropped in at a matinee, and there was Foster singing when he should have been out selling advertising!

Meanwhile Nelson Eddy was working as a shipping clerk for an iron works company in the same city. He had a habit of bursting into song when he was working hard. The foreman couldn't stand it, so he fired the singer, who promptly got a job on the Philadelphia paper that hadn't appreciated Foster's singing—the job was selling classified advertising.

Robert Taylor was washing the inside of a windshield in a service station in Beatrice, Neb., when the rag slipped out of his hand and into the lap of a lady. He fled, not waiting to be fired.

Farmer Brown's Boy
by Thornton W. Burgess

FARMER BROWN'S BOY TAKES GREAT PAINS

OLD MAN COYOTE was a stranger to Farmer Brown's Boy. Ever since he had come to the Green Meadows to live he had been very careful that Farmer Brown's Boy should never see him. So he knew all about Farmer Brown's Boy, for from safe hiding places he had watched him day after day. Farmer Brown's Boy knew very little about Old Man Coyote, and what he did know was what he had read. He wouldn't even have known that Old Man Coyote was living on the Green Meadows but for the sound of his voice. Now he had found Old Man Coyote's home and he fully intended that Old Man Coyote should bowl no more. So he set traps all about Old Man Coyote's home, and in doing it he took the greatest pains.

With that Farmer Brown's Boy, with Bowser at his heels, started for home.

"I've heard that he has a very wonderful nose," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to Bowser the Hound, who sat watching him, "such a wonderful nose that if I should touch one of these traps with my bare hands he would be able to smell me and so be warned. You've got a pretty good nose yourself, Bowser, but it isn't in it with Old Man Coyote's. So you see I've smoked the traps and I've smoked the gloves I am wearing, and I don't see how he is going to smell me, do you?"

Now Old Man Coyote had three doorways to his home, and in each of these Farmer Brown's Boy set a trap, a cruel steel trap with wide-spread jaws to seize Old Man Coyote by a leg. To each trap was attached a chain, and the end of the chain was fastened to a heavy stick of wood. The sticks of wood Farmer Brown's Boy buried just under the surface of the ground, and he sifted the sand and dust over the chains and traps himself, of course—and as the setting is what old Vienna always is in the movies, she sings an arrangement of the "Blue Danube."

Fashion-Wise Use Bright, Gay Colors

This is developing into a season of gorgeously gay colors. The tweeds for coats and suits were never so strikingly colorful. Plaids have gone on a rampage of color. Feathers on hats flaunt color to the limit. Accessories are a riot of eye-blinding color.

In costume design a play on color is being made that is startling in effect, but the bold handling of contrast colors is one of the most fascinating gestures fashion records this season. For example, it is chic for a dress to have a neutral colored shirtwaist top, with a skirt which introduces panels of vivid colors. Such a dress could be made of pale beige with sections of scarlet, Irish green and royal blue.

The new black frocks achieve their dash of color with yokes, vestees or front panel effects made up of green, cerise and purple crepe. Dare as much color as you please and you will be none too colorful this season.

Four-Piece Suit

An absorbing theme with designers is "clothes" for the teen-age. There is apparently nothing left that should be done to cater successfully to the fashion needs and caprices of the younger generation. The underlying thought that controls apparel design for youth in these modern times is to devise outfits that can be manipulated to serve for many-purpose wear. They have interchangeable parts or reversables, in and out "zippered" linings and countless other ingenious contrivances that contribute to efficiency. Plaid is everywhere in the fashion picture. This four-piece suit has a reversible hat and jacket—the other side is red corduroy.

count still has a balane in it and the Welfare Department can on a vote passed by the Board of Selectmen update of September 7, incur liability in contracting bills for food and supplies for Welfare recipients all of which goes to show that no needy person is to suffer as far as we are concerned.

If the Auditors report was so acceptable to the Chairman of the Welfare Board, why is he suesing the Boston Post Publishing Co. for printing extracts from this report?

In the report, printed last week of Mr. Allen's, I think the last paragraph sums up the present condition of affairs very well. I quote, "From a brief glimpse I had of the records on Monday night I am of the opinion that it will require the services of a State Investigator to arrive at a base from which a new start can be made"

This Committee has always recommended adequate funds for Relief but we also have a duty to the taxpayers of the Whole Town in seeing that these amounts do not exceed a reasonable limit and that the Administration of the Welfare Department in the spending of one of our largest appropriations is efficiently conducted.
